MEMO FOR THE DIRECTOR

SUBJECT: Meeting with ANKA-Sa/15 on 19 February 1961

1. Subject called this meeting as an emergency contact and was met at 1300 hours in the front of the Nordiska Museum. The next regular meeting with Subject was scheduled for 22 February. He failed to show up on 22 February.
2. Subject called this emergency meeting to advise me he has an important operational lead to report. He stated that he has been advised by one of his side-kicks in Goteborg (Pemperis) that a Swedish ship, the SANKUS, is going to Riga around 26 February and that Pemperis knows of a Swedish sailor of Latvian origin who in turn is a friend of a Latvian sailor who is going to Riga on the SANKUS and who is willing to deliver packages and letters or anything else in a clandestine fashion. When I asked Subject for specifics such as names, background, etc., he stated he didn't know such details but this contact could be trusted as well, as Pemperis recommended it. I tried to explain to Subject that we have stopped operating in this fashion, that we will not consider getting involved in this type of operation unless we have more information, better assessment and more time to lay on an operation securely. In the second instance we have no interest in this type of contact any way and, therefore, I indicated to Subject that we will take no action on his lead. Subject was very disappointed actually had tears in his eyes and ^{looked} utterly helpless and unbelieving that I was not equally enthused about his lead.

Case Officer Comment: This incident as well as Subject's reaction when I tried to explain to him now for the third time that we were only interested in secure operations which have a definite goal and objective, mainly the collection of positive intelligence or the spotting, development and recruitment of agent prospects who have access to positive intelligence, indicated to me that he is beyond all hope. He simply has no mentality which is conducive to our operational requirements, and it is an absolute waste of time to consider Subject for any operational tasks which involved the spotting, contacting, developing and recruiting of agent candidates.

3. Subject then presented another lead which has a bit more merit. He stated that the mother of Pemperis was coming to Sweden as a legal emigrant from Latvia and that he is able to meet with her and debrief her if we do desire. of this, I advised him that I was in favor that he should contact her and try through elicitation obtain from her the kind of information which I had outlined to him during previous meetings. I had given him a written brief and asked him to follow those instructions in his debriefing of this old lady. I authorized him to spend some funds if such expenses are necessary for transportation or other miscellaneous circumstances involving the contacting and debriefing of Pemperis' mother. I asked Subject to give me a final report of his debriefing as well as a final PRQ report on both Pemperis and Liepens and Eisenberg, all of whom are witting of his AIS connection and all of whom are sub-sources of Subject's.

Case Officer Comment: I am sick and tired of the bastard and the next time I see him I want to tell him that we have no further use of his cooperation. I am waiting for Headquarters reaction to my last dispatch OSSA-9312, 12 February 1960 in which I have indicated Subject's questionable use and hope to be able to put him on ice or fire him whenever such a reply arrives.
